

CONTENTS

Foreword	v
Part I: Introduction and Overview	1
1. Assessing the IAEA's Ability to Verify the NPT Henry D. Sokolski	3
Part II: New IAEA Inspections Possibilities	63
2. Can We Track Source Materials Better—Do We Need To? Jack Edlow	65
3. Novel Technologies for the Detection of Undeclared Nuclear Activities Nikolai Khlebnikov, Davide Parise, and Julian Whichello	71
4. Wide Area Environmental Sampling in Iran Garry Dillon	85
Part III: Safeguards Limits and Premises.....	99
5. Can Nuclear Fuel Production in Iran and Elsewhere Be Safeguarded against Diversion? Edwin S. Lyman	101
6. Adequacy of IAEA's Safeguards for Achieving Timely Detection Thomas B. Cochran	121

7. Managing Spent Fuel in the United States: The Illogic of Reprocessing Frank von Hippel	159
8. The NPT, IAEA Safeguards and Peaceful Nuclear Energy: An “Inalienable Right,” but Precisely To What? Robert Zarate	221
Part IV: The Agency’s Authority	291
9. The Nuclear Non-proliferation Regime: Avoiding the Void Pierre Goldschmidt	293
10. The U.S.-India Civil Nuclear Cooperation Initiative: The Question of Safeguards Quentin Michel	311
11. Financing IAEA Verification of the Nuclear Nonproliferation Treaty Thomas E. Shea	323
About the Contributors	337

FOREWORD

The following volume consists of research that The Nonproliferation Policy Education Center (NPEC) commissioned in 2005 and 2006. This work was critiqued at a set of international conferences held in London, England, at King's College; Washington, DC; and in Paris, France, in cooperation with the Fondation pour la Recherche Stratégique (FRS) and the French Foreign Ministry. Dr. Wyn Bowen at King's College, Bruno Gruselle at FRS, and Martin Briens of the French Foreign Ministry were critical to the success of these meetings.

Funding for the project came from the Carnegie Corporation of New York. Both of the corporation's key project managers, Stephen Del Rosso and Patricia Moore Nicholas, were generous with their time and always supportive. NPEC's project coordinator, Tamara Mitchell, and the Strategic Studies Institute (SSI) staff helped prepare the book manuscript. Without Ms. Mitchell's help and that of Ms. Marianne Cowling and Ms. Rita Rummel of SSI, the book would not have been possible. Finally, to the project's authors and participants who contributed their time, ideas, and hard work, a special thanks is due.

HENRY D. SOKOLSKI
Executive Director
The Nonproliferation Policy
Education Center